

Computer Networking

The course is designed to prepare you for Network Engineer Job role from scratch. You do not need any previous or qualification. Basic IT knowledge and genuine passion is enough. You will start learning from very basic level and then we will gradually take you to the professional level.

The training program is highly practical and hands on. You will not only have various modern networking technologies but also have practical skills to design, build, manage and troubleshoot enterprise network.

There is huge difference between Network Engineer and IT Support engineer. To become network engineer you will need to understand complex networking concept and have solid understanding of all technologies and component that makes network. Our experienced and qualified trainers will help you at every step and give you confidence that you will need to get your dream jobs.

All skills and knowledge you gain, will be validated with recognized qualifications. This training program will prepare you for the certifications exams, which are highly demanding and recognized for Network Engineer job role.